WEATHER AND CROPS

The weather the past few days has been ideal for the growth of vegetation. These bright sunny days are bringing the different grains and garden vegetables along at a rapid growth. The country on all sides is resplendent with green leaves and growing grain and a drive through the rural districts is most impressing. Grain is up several inches and is an even crop throughout. It is not patchy as it often is in less propitious years. In some sections grain has been sown a little too thickly, but this is not an unmixed evil as harrowing will tend to thin out the grain and will also improve it by stirring up the ground. On the whole the crop prospects were never brighter and a record breaking yield is expected.

—A gang of men under Mr. Whiteman, who was awarded the contract, are engaged in laying water and sewer connections from the sewer pipes and water mains to the stores along Jasper avenue.

—"Resources" is the name of the latest Canadian magazine. It is published at Montreal and states that its object is to furnish full and authentic data of the boundless resources of Canada. It is non-political and will give an impartial presentation of the resources of the different subdivisions.

—Saskatchewan Herald.—Mr. Jas. G. Dagg, of Winnipeg, was in town this week, having driven from Edmonton through the famous Vermilion country and the British colony. He had with him six gentlemen from Nebraska, U. S. to whom he sold six sections near the colony on the line of the C. N. R. The Americans were so pleased with their purchase that they think they are only the fore runners of a great many people from their districts.

—Our Horse Hills correspondent, among a number of excellent items from that district, mentioned that "Chas. G. Jones, agent for the Heintzman and Company piano, placed in the home of Mr. Jeff. Lewis last week, a beautiful high grade piano." Mr. Chas. G. Jones wishes us to announce that he did not do so. It was Mr. Jones, agent for the Conely Church Organ and Piano Company, who sold a piano.

—The Bulletin acknowledges the receipt of a new book from H. W. B. Douglas' book store entitled "Wee Macgreegor," by J. J. Bell. A critic sizes it up thus: "One of the most delicious bits of literature that has been offered to the reading public in many a day. The great charm of this book lies in its absolute naturalness. The wee Scotch laddie, his father and mother are delightful acquaintances to make, and the book has taken England by storm."

BRIGADE AGAIN CALLED OUT

The fire brigade was called out again yesterday afternoon. In a few seconds less than three minutes from the time the alarm was received at the fire station the engine was out on the street on the way to the fire. It proceeded but a short distance when they were told that the fire had been put out. Children playing in an upstairs room in Mr. Wharton's house, with the evident intention of testing the inflammability of lace curtains, set a match to them. The curtains were soon a mass of flames and the alarm was sent in. The flames were quenched without spreading any further, but the alarm was not contradicted in time to save the town considerable expense.

PERSONAL

Victor Ross, special correspondent of the Toronto Globe, is in Edmonton today.

Mrs. A. Cristall left for a visit to different points in Assiniboia yesterday morning.

Gus Doze, Beaver Hills, was in town yesterday. Crops are in a very flourishing condition in that district.

A. W. English, wife and child, arrived in Edmonton last night from Greenwood, B.C. They will make Edmonton their home in future. Mr. English is a partner in the Cunningham Electric Supply Company.

THE SEDIMENTATION BASIN

The sedimentation basin has been completed and has been pumped full of water from the river, which has been very muddy the past few days. It is expected that the sediment in the water, in sinking to the bottom, will fill up the pores in the ground, and thus prevent much leakage from the basin. The grounds about the sedimentation basin and the power house have been leveled and gravelled, and what was formerly most unsightly is now a place where an enjoyable half hours' visit may very profitably be spent.

FIRE ALARM SYSTEM

The time has come when a proper fire alarm system is an absolute necessity to Edmonton. We have had three fires in less than one week and after each one of them complaints have been made about the impossibility of hearing the fire bell. It is well-known that the bell is cracked and has long since been unfit for service. While it was ringing for yesterday's fire people within a few blocks failed to hear it. In a couple of cases recently the alarm was given in good time, but there was considerable delay in getting the chemical engine to the fire on account of lack of men to assist. This is caused by the practical impossibility of hearing the bell beyond a few blocks from the fire hall. What is needed is a good fire bell that will echo and re-echo from one end of the town to the other. There should be no possibility of making such a mistake as was made Monday morning by taking the wrong rope and giving the fire alarm at the same rate as the seven o'clock bell is rung. So far there have been no apparent losses that can be laid to our poor fire alarm service but there is no necessity of waiting for a direct example before taking steps to provide for a thoroughly practical and up-to-date fire alarm system.

The Barr Colony

Saskatchewan Herald, June 3rd.

Where a few weeks ago there stood a couple of hundred bell-shaped tents, containing part of the British colony, there are today less than a dozen, and within the past few days nearly all the remaining Britishers, who have for various reasons not located, are now on lands which they have homesteaded. Many have small crops of potatoes and oats in, while others, who delayed locating are now moving out their heavily laden wagons to their new homes.

Probably the most striking feature of the whole movement is the degree of perseverance shown by the new settlers. Despite troubles and trials brought on by being badly advised by the promotors of the colony, and weather as disagreeable as could be imagined, these people have, with the exception of two or three, all remained and braved the worst to reap the best.

Almost every difficulty in the way of the Britishers has now been removed by the government, who have decided no longer to allow Mr. Barr the right of looking after the people.

Through the efforts of Colonization Agent Speers all the difficulties which have been so prominent, have been removed and the department of the interior is to be congratulated on the able manner in which they rescued the sinking ship from destruction and put it afloat to glide on through years as prosperously as the picture of living in Western Canada was first painted.

PONOKA WILL INCORPORATE

The ratepayers of Ponoka have decided to incorporate their village into a town. Ponoka is a lively and wide-awake town, having made very rapid progress the past year. The Herald does a great deal towards keeping the attractions and resources of the Ponoka district before the public. In speaking of incorporation, the Herald says:—

"The territory to be included in the proposed town will be all of section 4-43-25. The population of the village is at present 525 inhabitants and only 400 are required for the incorporation of a town. Three years ago the village of Ponoka consisted of only a log store, a log school, a log church and a log boarding house, and the residents of today should certainly congratulate themselves that the town has made such rapid strides in its progress as to be able to incorporate into a full-fledged town."

Winnipeg Markets

Commercial, June 6th.

Wheat.—Manitoba wheat in the Winnipeg market has been strong or easy according to the tone of the American markets but as the price of it is governed more by the export value than by speculative operations it does not show more advance than 1 to 1 1-4c per bushel over a week ago. There is a steady moderate demand most all the time, although there are times when trade is dull and buyers hard to find unless the price is lowered. At the close of business yesterday we quote prices as follows, viz.: 1 hard, 79 1-2c; 1 northern, 78 1-4c, 2 northern, 76c; 3 northern, 72c; No. 4 wheat, 67 1-2c; spot or June delivery in store Fort William and Port Arthur.

Oats.—The market is practically unchanged. Car shortage is the controlling factor in the situation and it is to this condition that dealers attribute the prevailing strength of prices. Oats are known to be plentiful in the country, but as they cannot be obtained in quantities this knowledge has but little bearing upon prices. Local feed merchants pay 32c per bushel for car lots of No. 1 white on track here, and 31c for 2 white. Feed grade is worth 29 to 30c. At Fort William No. 1 white oats are worth 33c per bushel, No. 2 white, 31c.

Barley.—In the country feed barley is worth 21 to 23c per bushel, and on track here 32c to 35c. There is very little doing in the market.

Our Root Crop Seeds

Contributed.

Every careful stockman recognizes the fact that flush pasture is the ideal feed for keeping all classes of live stock in a healthy thriving condition, but in most parts of this country it is necessary to provide large stores of succulent feed for the long winter months when pastures are not available. The various sorts of roots go a long way towards supplying a cheap and satisfactory substitute for grass, and is consequence many million bushels are grown annually. Large quantities of seed of turnips, swedes, mangels and carrots are used each year on Canadian farms, but the crops produced are frequently disappointing. As a rule our farmers have hitherto been entirely in the dark regarding the sources of supply of such seeds, and the methods of growing them. The seed division of the Dominion department of agriculture has been investigating these questions and is able to offer suggestions that cannot fail to be of value to growers of root crops. According to Chief C. H. Clark, of the seed division, a few farmers in Canada make a specialty of growing root crop seed, but practically the whole amount of such seed offered in the trade is imported from Europe and is grown in France, Germany and England. A favorable climate and cheap labor have made these countries the seed gardens of the world. A few notes on the way in which seeds are grown there, will help to explain why farmers often fail to get roots showing good type and uniform excellence all over a field.

Turnips, swedes, mangels and carrots are all biennial plants, that is, they store up nourishment in the root during the whole of the first year, and use that store of food for the production of seed during the second and final year of their life. Most of our domesticated plants have been evolved from wild types through long years of selection, cultivation and cross-fertilization. The original wild types were usually annuals, producing seed the first year, and there is a tendency among all improved plants to revert rapidly to the old unimproved types, whenever they are deprived of that careful attention to selection and cultivation which has brought them up to their present high standing.

Canadian farmers have not fully recognized that the value of root crop seeds is far from depending on their vitality alone. It is even more important that they be taken from carefully grown and selected stocks. We seldom see a field of roots that are uniformly true to type and free from abnormal growth of top, large necks and ill-shaped, prongy roots. This undesireable state of affairs is largely due to the sowing of seeds taken from stocks of a similar character.

The best quality of seed is produced from selected and transplanted roots. Seed of turnips and swedes is produced in quantity in this manner in the north of Scotland. The climate of Scotland, like that of Canada, is such that root crop seeds can only be successfully produced by harvesting the roots before winter and transplanting them the following spring. The bulk of the seed of these crops, which is imported for the Canadian trade, is grown in France and the south of England, where the climate is such that the roots may remain unharvested through the winter and produce seed the following year. Some of the more reliable seed growers in these countries exercise a great deal of care in the production of their stocks. They supply seeds from their own selected stocks to small farmers, who grow quantities of seed for them under contract. The best quality of seed offered in the Canadian trade is grown in this way. There is, however, evidence to show that a great deal of the seed of these crops offered in Canada, is of much inferior quality. The increased labor required to grow seed from selected and transplanted roots, raises their price above the range of American seed firms. For this the seedsman is not to blame. Our farmers have demanded cheap seeds, without any guarantee as to quality, and the seedsmen have usually tried to meet the demand. A great deal of the root crop seed used in Canada is grown by small, irresponsible European farmers whose chief object is to obtain a maximum yield of seed, independent of its quality. In the growing of these stocks it is a common practice to sow late in the season after an early crop has been harvested from the land. Young plants thus produced are in many cases not thinned, and do not grow to a reasonable size during the first season. From a crop of this a very large amount of top is produced, and a large quantity of seed obtained per acre at a minimum cost.

It would be unreasonable to expect our farmers to grow root crop seeds for the Canadian trade and compete in the matter of price with the seeds produced by the above methods in countries where labor is so cheap and climatic conditions so favorable. Until the consumers of these seeds learn that it pays to use only seed that is taken from selected and transplanted roots, grown in a climate similar to that where the seed is wanted for use, the quantity of home-grown stock offered in the trade will be extremely limited. It therefor appears that growers of root crops will find it to their advantage to purchase only seeds from extra selected stocks, no matter what the price may be, or better still, grow their own seed from the best and most typical roots raised on their own farms.
